Electric Mirror Awarded Patent for Mirrored TV Cabinet

(Everett, WA) The United States Patent and Trademark Office granted Electric Mirror® patent US8,910,402 B2 for its invention featuring a mirrored medicine cabinet combined with a TV in the door and a mirrored medicine cabinet combined with a lighting system in the door.

Filed with the US Patent Office in 2009 and recently awarded, the patent, officially titled “Medicine Cabinet Assembly,” protects Electric Mirror’s Mirrored Cabinets that contain a media device or lighting system installed within the door. According to Michael Uhl, Electric Mirror’s chief research engineer, “Our Mirrored Cabinets are unlike anything in the industry incorporating HDTV, natural color LED lighting, a mirror defogger, and audio in an ultra-thin door.” Select models also include V-mirror technology, which allows the screen to completely disappear when the HDTV is turned off.

“It’s all about creating the next best product for our clients. Our ongoing investment into research and development continues to keep us on the forefront of new product innovation. Congratulations to all Electric Mirror employees that were involved in obtaining this utility patent. Protecting our intellectual property is another successful step forward in creating jobs in America,” said Jim Mischel Jr., a patent attorney and CEO of Electric Mirror.

Electric Mirror’s latest patent is part of a growing portfolio of over 50 patents and patents pending covering Lighted Mirrors, Mirror TVs, Bluetooth® enabled mirrors, touch control mirrors, and other innovative designs and technology.
